

SOCIOLOGY (MA)

The Master of Arts (M.A.) in Sociology provides advanced training in social analytics and data-driven decision-making, specifically designed for careers in the public, non-profit, and corporate sectors. The program bridges sociological theory with advanced research methods to equip students with the training and skills to tackle complex social challenges. Students can customize their degree through specializations in Gender and Sexuality, Racism and Social Inequality, Human Rights, Policy, or Research Methods. This program culminates in a professional capstone portfolio that showcases the student's mastery of social research and practical application, or for students with Concurrent Enrollment in the Sociology Ph.D. program, a M.A. thesis.

D. Advisory and Capstone Requirement

Major Advisor

Students are responsible for selecting a Major Advisor from the Sociology graduate faculty. This faculty member will guide the students' course selection, approve their Plan of Study, and evaluate their final capstone requirements.

Final Capstone Requirement

A portfolio evaluated by your Major Advisor consisting of a minimum of three papers that together illustrate knowledge of sociological theory, research methods, and at least one substantive area.

M.A. Thesis

Students with Concurrent Enrollment in the Sociology Ph.D. program will earn a M.A. degree upon completing a master's thesis, which includes submitting a written thesis and passing a formal thesis defense. Students must register for 9 thesis credits.

Learning Objectives

1. Demonstrate appropriate breadth and depth of disciplinary knowledge and comprehension of the major sociological topics, theories, and issues.
2. Use disciplinary methods and techniques to apply knowledge, critically analyze, and achieve advanced productive and creative accomplishments.
3. Communicate proficiently and effectively to a specialist and non-specialist audience, verbally and in writing a structured, coherent academic presentation, representation, or argument that cogently summarizes their research or creative pursuit, relevant literature, and its significance at the level appropriate to discipline.
4. Conduct themselves in accordance with the highest ethical and responsible standards, values, and, where these are defined, the best practices of the discipline.

Up to 12 credits of required graduate coursework taken while the student is an undergraduate may be used toward both the B.A. and M.A. Plans of Study. Undergraduate students enrolled in Sociology must apply for the accelerated track at the end of their junior year and then apply to the M.A. program during their senior year.
